

Dear Valued Customers, Partners and Suppliers,

The challenges this unprecedented global pandemic has presented are widespread and, at times, incomprehensible. The loss of human life is devastating, the effects on the global economy will resonate for many months. No family, community, or country has been able to escape this debilitating virus that has us all living within a new paradigm that none of us could have even imagined a few short months ago. Yet the human spirit perseveres.

Anywhere you look you can see friends, family, coworkers, and even strangers, reaching out to help someone in need and supporting the everyday heroes that are out there on the frontline fighting this disease every day. Even in these dark days, there is so much goodness to appreciate and so much to be thankful for. These silver linings give us the confidence to know that together we will all get through this.

As we all continue to face the challenges, we want all of our customers, partners and vendors to know that we are here to help you in any way we can. Our dedicated and nimble team quickly adjusted to this new paradigm and, with the help of our committed vendors and partners, our global VJ network continues to meet the needs of our customers. Our Sales team is learning that, while the customer needs may be evolving, our extremely talented technical team is always able to provide the customers with the solutions they need. Our inspection services and applications teams are working around the clock to meet the demands of our customers. Our Production team, even while working under very stringent safety protocols, continues to deliver a quality product on time. Our Management, Administration, Finance and Support staff are the glue that keep the organization moving upward and onward on a daily basis. Our confidence in our Team, and in our ability to see through this crisis, grows every day.

The world of tomorrow may not be the same as our world of yesterday but we have every confidence that we, along with our suppliers and partners, will incorporate the lessons learned from these trying times, and be positioned to successfully handle all the opportunities and challenges the future will present.

The entire VJ Group stands ready to help. Please don't hesitate to contact any one of us, or me personally at any time.

Stay safe and healthy,

Vijay Alreja
